The needs of our customers determine our actions. The quality and value requirements of our customers are decisive for the product development and production processes of the Comet Group. Our products are competitive, flawless, safe and environmentally friendly in their application, thus making a decisive contribution to the success of our customers.

3 Continuous improvement of quality and environmental performance

"Quality first" is considered the defining value of the process-oriented management of the Comet Group. Continuous improvement begins with the planning of new products, activities and processes. Our management sets division- and site-specific quality and environmental goals, provides the appropriate means and structures, and regularly reviews the achievement of these goals. Internal audits, customer and certification audits, benchmarks and best practice applications help to continuously develop the quality, environmental and safety management system.

When selecting and working together, we give preference to suppliers and partners who have anchored our quality and sustainability principles in their corporate culture and processes. We support our suppliers' efforts to improve and ensure quality and work with them to optimize overall processes. Appropriate, defined selection and evaluation procedures and regular audits ensure that the most important suppliers support our quality, environmental and safety policy.
